Testimony by Peter Harding

I value my treasured, wonderful land, perched beautifully on Big Sur's Central Coast with its rolling hills, flats, manicured lawns and exotic plants. It has breathtaking views that overlook the cliff edges of the Pacific Ocean. So, what could anyone tell me about what I should do with it?

I was surprised when these Big Sur ladies, LaVerne McLeod and Monica Eastway, both certified permaculture designers, visited with me twice on my property in October for a "Discovery Experience." Shockingly, they did not tell me what to do as I had expected from anyone ever using terms that has the word "landscape" in it. Uniquely, they really mean it when they say "soul-centered landscape design."

We sat, walked the property and talked. They listened to me spill my emotional and intellectual energy behind the spiritual nature of what my property and each of my pre-conceived project ideas mean to me. I rather enjoyed their relaxed and humorous energy. They authentically gave full attention and elaborated the natural flow of my property layout. This allowed me to safely dig deeper into my property dreams with details that created laughter and joy for all of us. As I talked, I discovered things that I had laid aside, that were unfolding with support to re-iterate my vision with certain design concepts such as bioregionalism, re-wilding, guilds, natural patterns and regeneration.

I encourage this Big Sur Terra Sanctum team to continue their excellent support as they grow their business. Now that my dreams and desires have come to surface with their support, the next phase is to focus on how we can, together, implement my various projects, one stage at a time.
